

05/14/98 Satellite Lounge, Houston, TX

From: "Hartman, Gary" (Hartman@UH.EDU)

Hey now,

Since I don't see any posts yet about last night, I'll just say a word or two about the Incident at the Fabulous Satellite Lounge here in Space City.

Having arrived early to get set up with Jon O (to whom, as always, major kudos & thanks are due), Incidentalisters Alan, Ches & I were a little concerned to see only about a dozen people in the joint as Keller's time approached. However, once Seinfeld had said his goodbyes, folks started arriving in goodly numbers.

When all was said & done, the club (which has little seating but maybe room for 300 or so dancers & millers-about) was pleasantly crowded but not packed.

Those who came had plenty to smile about. Keller entertained the arrivees with a set that included Deadhead-friendly covers of El Paso (to open) and Doin' That Rag.

When the boys came on around 10:30, it didn't take long to get down to business: Little Hands, in the second slot, was one of the highlights of the night - played with massive energy & enthusiasm all around and including a wonderful long jam. A full setlist is gonna have to wait for consultations with fellow tapers, but the first set also sported Mountain Girls and a beautiful Smile.

The second set contained the night's big surprise. As the possum ran through the Blackberries, there was a pause, a space, and an expectation. Would we get Estimated, which had been soundchecked? Nope, instead familiar strains coalesced into Hotel California. Not a tease, a full-fledged version, albeit sans vocals. As a friend said, "At first it seemed cheesy (no pun intended) but, man, Hotel California rocked!" Setlist freaks, is this a first?

The obligatory nod to Texas was Redneck Mother, complete with Bill's toast to Lone Star beer, the dubious virtues of which he had extolled a couple of times during the evening. A well-jammed Black Clouds concluded the second set. With encores, the show ran about 2.5 hours.

Contrary to its reputation as a musical wasteland, Houston does have a dedicated if small tapers community. There were perhaps a half dozen patched in and one very impressive audience rig. After getting back from Austin, I'll be making some D>D and D>A offers here, so watch this space.

Thanks, SCI & all those who made this Incident possible, for coming to Houston. Peace in Cheese,

Gary
